Top Music Blog Posts of 2020 & 2025

- From Lockdown Listening to the New Music Economy
- 7 2020: The Year the Music Came Home
- ¬ Pitchfork's Top 10 Albums of 2020: The Definitive Guide for Indie and Hip-Hop
- A major cultural touchpoint, Pitchfork's annual list doubled as a critical chronicle of a turbulent year. With deep reviews across indie, hip-hop, and electronic, it sparked heated online debates and became a go-to musical time capsule.
- Song Exploder: How the Best Songs of 2020 Were Made
- With concerts canceled, fans craved connection. Song Exploder's companion blog posts offered just that—detailed breakdowns of hit songs and insights into the creative process. A perfect marriage of storytelling and technical exploration.
- 🚼 Your EDM: The Definitive Voice of Modern Electronic Music
- As clubs closed, Your EDM became a lifeline for electronic music fans. Top posts included deep dives into the rise of livestream DJ sets and updates on how producers adapted in a festival-less world.
- P Consequence of Sound: Breaking News and Anticipated Lineups
- While festivals vanished, hope remained. Consequence of Sound kept readers engaged with speculation posts on future Coachella or Lollapalooza lineups, mixing fact, rumor, and fan anticipation into a compelling blend.
- Wetal Injection: Up-to-the-Minute Metal News and Documentaries
- A staple for the metal community, Metal Injection's long-form interviews, genre retrospectives, and exclusive documentaries kept the scene vibrant—despite tour cancellations and shuttered venues.
- Rap-Up: The Authority on Hip-Hop and R&B
- Hip-hop didn't slow down in 2020, and neither did Rap-Up. Its quick, detailed posts on album drops and viral moments made it a crucial outlet for fans keeping pace with the ever-moving culture.

- Nun The Trap: Bringing Underground Trap to the Forefront
- Dedicated to genre discovery, Run The Trap introduced readers to underground sounds, rising producers, and cultural context. A top destination for those seeking what's next in trap and bass music.

2025: Rebuilding, Releasing, and Redefining Music Culture

- The New Release Cycle: How to Release Music in 2025 (Audiohype)
- A guidebook for modern artists. This blog post broke down the evolving release strategies in a world ruled by social media, playlisting, and data-driven drops. A huge hit among indie creators and labels.
- Top Music Blogs to Submit Your Music to in 2025 (PlaylistHub)
- A popular "how-to" that mapped out key submission strategies for artists. Featuring blogs like Pitchfork, Music Review World, and Hype Machine, this post demystified exposure in a competitive industry.
- In Measuring and Managing Your Fanbase: The New Key to Success
- This standout post taught artists how to use analytics and insights to cultivate and activate their fan communities—highlighting that in 2025, your data is as important as your beats.
- 3 45 of the Best Music Blogs in 2025: A Curated List (Audiohype)
- A curated meta-resource, this article helped both artists and fans discover the top blogs across genres—from Consequence of Sound to UFO Network. A favorite among new acts seeking coverage.
- The WonderWhy: A Music Blog and Vlog Focused on Lyrics
- Celebrated for its lyric-first approach, The WonderWhy emerged as a standout niche voice. The blog's blend of analysis, interviews, and video made it a magnet for poetry-loving music fans.
- Image: Hip-Hop Wired: Features on Hip-Hop Culture and Urban Lifestyle
- This post spotlighted Hip-Hop Wired as a full-spectrum culture blog—covering music, politics, fashion, and Black identity. A top performer for its broad yet deep celebration of hip-hop life.

• As EDM stayed strong, UFO Network gained prominence with insider interviews, scene analysis, and viral music drops. Touted as a "Top 50 EDM Blog," it became essential reading for dance music fans.

•